Structure and Use of This Book	xxiv
Part 1: Theory
1A: Introduction to the Basic Principles of Traditional Chinese Medicine and Chinese Dietetics.....	3
1 Yin and Yang	3
2 Therapeutic Principles of TCM.....	7
2.1 Yin and Yang Are Opposites	7
2.2 Yin and Yang Are Divisible but Inseparable (Yin Yang Ke Fen Er Bu Ke Li).....	7
2.3 Yin and Yang Are Rooted in Each Other (Yin Yang Hu Gen).....	7
2.4 Yin and Yang Counterbalance Each Other (Yin Yang Zhi Yue).....	7
2.5 Yin and Yang Mutually Transform Each Other.....	8
3 The Five Phases (Wu Xing).....	9
4 The Five Basic Substances.....	10
4.1 Life Force—Qi.....	10
4.1.1 Function.....	10
4.1.2 Dysfunction.....	10
4.2 Congenital Essence—Jing.....	11
4.2.1 Function.....	11
4.2.2 Dysfunction.....	11
4.3 Blood—Xue.....	12
4.3.1 Function.....	12
4.3.2 Dysfunction.....	12
4.4 Spirit—Shen.....	13
4.4.1 Function.....	13
4.4.2 Dysfunction.....	13
4.5 Body Fluids—Jin Ye.....	13
4.5.1 Function.....	13
4.5.2 Dysfunction.....	13

5	Causes of Diseases	15
5.1	External Bioclimatic Factors or Impediments	15	5.1.4	Heat 16
			5.1.5	Dryness (Zao)..... 16
5.1.1	Wind	15	5.2	Internal Factors, “The Five Minds (Emotions)” (Wu Shi)..... 16
5.1.2	Cold	15
5.1.3	Dampness.....	16
6	Traditional Chinese Nutrition Theory.....	17
6.1	The Qi Energy Concept of TCM....	17	6.1.2	Gu Qi (Drum Qi, or Food Qi)..... 18
6.1.1	Congenital Constitution Essence (Jing).....	17	6.1.3	Ancestral (Air) Qi (Zong Qi)..... 18
7	Function of the Triple Burner (San Jiao)	20
7.1	The Upper Burner: Heart, Lungs, Pericardium (Upward from Diaphragm)	20	7.3	The Lower Burner: Liver, Kidney, Bladder, and Intestine (Downward from Navel) 20
7.2	The Center Burner: Spleen, Pancreas, Stomach (Between Diaphragm and Navel)	20
1B:	Methodology of Nutritional Therapy	21
8	Energetics of Food	21
9	Energetic Thermal Nature	22
9.1	Hot.....	23	9.6	“Yang Foods” 24
9.2	Warm.....	23	9.6.1	Qi Vacuity..... 24
9.3	Neutral	23	9.6.2	Yang Vacuity 24
9.4	Cool	23	9.7	“Yin Foods” 24
9.5	Cold	23	9.7.1	Yin Vacuity..... 24
			9.7.2	Yang Repletion..... 24
10	The Five Flavors (Wu Wei)	25
10.1	Sweet Flavor	26	10.4	Sour Flavor 27
10.2	Acrid Flavor.....	26	10.5	Bitter Flavor..... 27
10.3	Salty Flavor	27

11	Flavor Association with Organ Networks.....	29
11.1	Example: Carrot.....	30
11.2	Qi Movement Caused by Food: Food Direction.....	30
11.2.1	Upbearing Movement.....	30
11.2.2	Floating Movement.....	30
11.2.3	Downbearing Movement.....	30
11.2.4	Falling Movement.....	30
12	Influencing the Thermal Nature of Foods.....	31
12.1	Cooling Cooking Methods	31
12.2	Warming Cooking Methods.....	31
13	Cooking Methods in Detail.....	32
13.1	Baking.....	32
13.2	Blanching	32
13.3	Frying and Roasting.....	32
13.4	Steaming.....	32
13.5	Grilling/Broiling/ Barbecue.....	32
13.6	Boiling/Simmering	32
13.7	Cooking with Alcohol	33
13.8	Boiling with Plentiful Water	33
13.9	Cooking with Cooling Ingredients (e.g., Fruit, Sprouts)	33
13.10	Slow, Gentle Frying (Braising)	33
13.11	Salting (Pickling in Brine)	33
13.12	Smoking.....	33
13.13	Seasoning	33
14	Green Smoothies in TCM	35
14.1	Introduction	35
14.2	Notes and Tips for Clinical Practice	35
14.2.1	Amount.....	35
14.2.2	Shelf Life and Storage	35
14.2.3	Conclusion	35
14.3	Basic Ingredients	36
14.4	Other Ingredients (Recommended by the Season, in Relation to Central Europe)	36
14.5	For Beginners	36
14.6	For People with More Experience...	36
14.7	Basic Recipe for Approximately 1.5 Liters/Quarts Smoothie	36
14.8	Additional Tips	37

15	Meal Preparation in Tune with the Five Phases (Wood, Fire, Earth, Metal, Water)	38
16	Fasting	39
16.1	Introduction	39	16.5	Total Fasting 40
16.2	Common Indications.....	39	16.6	How to Practice Total Fasting..... 40
16.3	General Recommendations for Fasting in Accordance with TCM Criteria	39	16.6.1	Purification Stage 40
			16.6.2	Fasting Stage 40
			16.6.3	Build-up Stage 41
16.3.1	Preparation.....	39	16.7	Concluding Remarks 41
16.4	Physical Activity.....	40
 Part 2: Chinese Dietetics in Practice
17	Basic Recommendations of Chinese Dietetics	45
17.1	The Path to Healthy Eating Habits.....	45	17.3	General Recommendations..... 45
			17.3.1	Cooking Methods 45
17.2	Inner Attitude and Environment..	45	17.3.2	Food Quantity..... 46
			17.3.3	Food Quality..... 46
17.2.1	Eating with Enjoyment and in a Relaxed Atmosphere	45	17.3.4	Flavor 46
			17.3.5	Energetic Thermal Quality 46
18	Special Significance of the Earth Phase	48
18.1	“Strengthening the Inner Center”.....	48
19	Nutrition and Daily Rhythms.....	50
19.1	Breakfast.....	50	19.3	Evening Meal/Dinner 50
19.2	Lunch	50
20	Nutrition and Seasonal Rhythms	51
20.1	Spring	51	20.3	Autumn 52
20.2	Summer (Hot Season)	51	20.4	Winter (Cold Season)..... 52

21	Nutrition and Pathogenic Factors	53
21.1	Cold.....	53	21.5	External Wind
21.2	Heat	53	21.5.1	Wind–Cold
21.3	Dampness.....	53	21.5.2	Wind–Heat
21.4	Dryness	53	21.6	Internal Wind
22	Nutrition and the Human Life Cycle.....	55
22.1	Children and Young People.....	55	22.3	Older People.....
22.2	Midlife.....	55
 Part 3: Practical Application of Chinese Dietetics
3A:	General Applications of Chinese Dietetics	59
23	Practical Guidelines for Giving Nutritional Advice	59
23.1	The Role of Chinese Nutrition in Traditional Chinese Medicine (TCM)	59	23.7	General Yang Vacuity.....
23.2	General Indications for Chinese Dietetics	59	23.7.1	Prevention
23.3	Do Not Worry about Dogmatism	60	23.8	General Yin Vacuity.....
23.3.1	Tips for Giving Nutritional Advice	60	23.8.1	Prevention
23.4	General Nutritional Recommendations (for Sharing with Patients).....	62	23.9	Yin Repletion (Excess) and Dampness.....
23.5	Application Areas	62	23.9.1	Prevention
23.5.1	Application Goal: Prevention ...	62	23.10	Yang Repletion (Excess) Conditions.....
23.5.2	Application Goal: Therapy	62	23.10.1	Prevention
23.6	General Qi Vacuity	63	23.11	Blood Vacuity (Xue Xu).....
23.6.1	Prevention	63	23.12	Strengthening Defense Qi (Wei Qi)
			23.13	Supplementing Lung Qi
			23.14	Dampness and Phlegm Conditions.....

3B: Application of Chinese Dietetics for Specific Conditions	73
